

"Bad guys are now trying to trick computer users into believing they are infected with the WannaCry ransomware. A popup arrives on your screen from nowhere, and you cannot get rid of it. The popup claims it is from Microsoft, that your computer is infected and that you need to call tech support.

But when you call the number you get a scammer on the phone who will try to charge you 400 dollars to run a Microsoft malicious software removal tool that anyone can download for nothing. Remember that Microsoft's error and warning messages on your PC will never include a phone number. Also, Microsoft will never proactively reach out to you to provide unsolicited PC or technical support. Any communication they have with you must be initiated by you."

Stay on your toes with security top of mind!!